V321_Intro

I have a letter here (that you may have received in the mail) which explains our interest in learning about HRS participants' retirement plans. (Please take a moment to read it.) As the letter explains, we would like to ask you for a copy of your retirement plan documents. We will be asking for documents you have received in the past 12 months for any retirement account or pension plan you have through your current (main) job.

We know that it may take some time for you to obtain, copy, and send us the documents we are requesting, so we will be happy to pay you [$25.00/$100.00/$50.00] for sending us these documents. Since the information provided by people like you is extremely valuable to our research, we will greatly appreciate your participation.

We want to assure you that all of your information will be kept strictly confidential. Neither you nor your employer will be identified and your information will not be shared with anyone outside the study. The information from the documents will be used for statistical purposes only and ultimately used in policy-making for older Americans.

NOTE: A RESPONDENT IS OFFERED $25 IF S/HE WAS RANDOMLY ASSIGNED VARIABLE X078=1 AND $100 IF ASSIGNED X078=2; OTHERWISE, S/HE IS OFFERED $50.

V324_HAVESPD

A 'Summary Plan Description' is a public document describing the details of pension or retirement plans offered to employees. It is available through your employer or pension provider and you are entitled to a copy of this document by law. It describes such things as the type of your pension plan, the eligibility rules, amount of contribution by you and your employer, vesting period, and amount of benefits at your expected age of retirement. Do you have a copy of this document for [your plan/any of the plans you have] through your current job?

DEFINITION: A 'pension provider' may be an employer, a pension plan administrator, a firm managing pensions or retirement accounts, a union, or an employer's association.
